Dear FCC Commissioners and Staff:

Federal Communications Commission
 Office of the Secretary

In Reading the last ECFS filing by Global Access, I can assure each of you that my disgust and anger at the regulatory processes, lack of enforcement, and how I have been treated as a shareholder of Global Crossing is now clearly focused on what is going on and who is doing it.

However, several other matters have occurred to me. I remember what GlobalAxxess filed on October 21, 2002 regarding Congressman Dana Rohrabacher's testimony before the U.S. Senate:

TESTIMONY OF CONGRESSMAN DANA ROHRABACHER
 U.S. SENATE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE
 OCTOBER 22, 1999

The Chinese People's Liberation Army does have a defined military strategy for confronting the United States. It is called "asymmetrical" or unrestricted warfare. An important new book called "Unrestricted War," published by the People's Liberation Army in 1999, is widely read and discussed by China's military elite. As the Washington Post reported, the authors of "Unrestricted War," advocate that the tactics for a less developed country to attack and defeat a superpower should include terrorism, drug trafficking, computer hacking and financial warfare.

It has also been apparent to me that both HW and STT have been trying to steer a course that continues "no due diligence."

In closing, another thought occurred to me while weighing all that I did know, and now know about Global Crossing:

We apparently do in fact have "financial terrorists" in our midst.

Sincerely,

James R. Elkington
